

10:35 techleslie: if y'all have any questions for him, let me know
10:37 UnklarKlaar-1: sorry, stepped away for a bit
10:37 plvitf: I agree that too often teachers are "scared" to email authors for fear of being shot down or not knowing the technology.
10:40 plvitf: It's nice to show kids that there is something out there than their local environment, whether it's good or bad.
10:41 UnklarKlaar-1: whooooo!!!
10:41 wmchamberlain: Social networking tools allow us to talk to people that have the same ideas about what education should be. Many teachers just do the job. That makes it difficult to have 10:41 wmchamberlain: conversations that are satisfying.
10:42 techleslie: I got a divorce from someone I met online too
10:43 plvitf: Agreed, and social networking tools also allow us to interact with those that challenge are thinking.
10:44 techleslie: The picture he just put up is priceless. It has three of him sitting on a couch. Wonder if he has it up somewhere else
10:46 plvitf: I do that with my Google Reader too, including trusting Dean :)
10:47 wmchamberlain: @plvitf Yup, it helps me look outside my classroom walls. I can learn new things that can be applied inside my classroom.
10:48 techleslie: I'm afraid to check my Google Reader. It has been a week
10:49 techleslie: I'm a big fan of "Mark all as read"
10:52 plvitf: @techleslie Best way to clean Reader!
10:53 techleslie: I never used these functions, except favorites. Never even thought about shared items, etc. Pretty nice
10:53 plvitf: I have my shared as a sidebar on my blog.
10:53 techleslie: That's a great idea
11:04 Windsor-Di: Delicious - add people to your network... have your own research department!
11:08 techleslie: He's using prezi, I'm not sure if there is a link to it
11:08 techleslie: the one he has up is for his log in
11:08 techleslie: it's pretty smooth though
11:09 cfoote: wondering what he is showing right now?
11:09 techleslie: It's a presentation using prezi
11:10 techleslie: i'm going to ask if there is a link to it or anything
11:10 techleslie: "how do we earn a living when everyone is freely sharing their ideas... in the past you were what you owned... now you are what you share
11:10 techleslie: what do you think?
11:11 techleslie: Did you catch that? It's good...should go see it. They should have a link on the area 7 moodle site
